Redistribution Suggested For Saskatchewan

Regina, Sask., Political gossip here is to the effect that a Conservative committee is preparing a redistribution of Saskatchewan. The objective of those making the new map, it is alleged is to increase the city seats to three in Regina, three in Saskatoon, and reduce the total number in the province to 56. The effect of this would be to decrease the rural seats by nine, while increasing the city seats by two.

One objective, it is said is to place T C Davis, M L A for Prince Alberta; W J Patterson, M L A for Pipestone, and J G Gardiner, M L A for North Qu'Appelle and leader of the opposition, in seats which they cannot possibly win.

This they hope to do, it is alleged, in Prince Albert by confining the seat as nearly as possible to the city; in Pipestone by eliminating the constituency altogether, and in North Qu'Appelle, by ignoring the natural river boundary, and throwing the leader of the Liberal party in a constituency, the greater part of which would be south of the Qu'Appelle river, along the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway.

It is said that the plans involve Last Mountain constituency, now held by J Benson, Progressive; Kindersley, held by E S Whatley, Progressive, and Weyburn, held by Hon R S Lesile, Speaker of the house, Progressive

H K Warren, M L A for Bengough, Conservative, is alleged to prefer to have a seat to be constituted about the city of Weyburn with the idea of eliminating the holder of the seat, Speaker Leslie, altogether because present member for Weyburn does not live in the city.

It is rumored that the Conservative organization is experiencing difficulty in the northeastern part of the province in the constituency occupied by Hon A C Stewart, minister of highways. Rumor states that he is anxious to have a constituency mapped out about the city of Yorkton, which he considers would be safe for himself, irrespective of how it affects any other constituency in the province

BACK IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Eldorado (Kan.): Here's a true story which may divert the minds of this column's two or three readers from the precarious oil situation; Not so long ago, a Butler county farmer marketed a train load of cattle in Kansas City. In early spring, and slipped into his vest pocket the $50,000 cheque which he received therefor. When he returned home the weather was hot, he began wearing lighter weight clothing and forgot all about the cheque until October, when he again had occasion to wear the vest and accidently discovered the $50,000 cheque in the vest pocket

SOCCER FOOTBALL GAINING IN POPULARITY IN CANADA

In view of the growing popularity of Soccer in Canada, and particularly in the larger centres of the West, a few brief articles on the game will prove of interest to those who have possibly witnessed their first game recently. Soccer is easily first in favour among the winter games of the British Isles, which is the home of the game and where the climate is not suitable for the several winter sports common to Canada, owing to its mildness.

In Great Britain, there are thousands of well organized teams, from the teams of highly prized professionals to elevens composed of boys attending the public schools, and whose skill varies, from that of the expert to that of the veriest tyro. Well financed clubs in the major leagues are quite willing to pay fees amounting to $50,000 for good players, who will fill a weak place in their ranks, while clubs consisting purely of amateurs, scour their immediate territory for players who are willing to play solely for the love of the game and the exercise gained therefrom.

The Saturday afternoon and holiday battles of the big league teams draw crowds of fans from thirty to seventy thousand, and the tid bit of the soccer season—the Cup Final—will result in a gate which usually exceeds the hundred thousand mark and receipts in excess of $75,000.

Cities, towns, villages, hamlets, schools, colleges and universities vie with one another for the supremacy in soccer. Men, women and children talk about it continually; it forms the chief topic of conversation among all classes in the Old Land; therefore, there must be something to a sport which can command the attention that is devoted to association football, to give it its proper title over there. There are other games such as rugby, grass hockey and golf which draw crowds of spectators, but none of these have the hold among rich and poor alike, that soccer has. The fabulous sums paid for grounds, players, and organization are ample proof of this. The public are willing to pay for the best, in spite of hard times even, and the directors of the many clubs are providing it.

To go into the history of the origin of the game would be unnecessary; the game of soccer is here, and here to stay. Canadians, irrespective of their country of origin, are turning out in large numbers to see the game played, and managers of clubs throughout the Dominion are endeavoring to obtain the best players that may be available, without doing so on the almost strictly professional basis general among the large British clubs. British teams, composed of the best possible players, from all corners of the several Islands, are being brought to Canada to give exhibitions, and to show Canada's soccer fans just how the game is played in the big league in the home land.

Canadians are taking a great interest in these visits, and are making a point of taking in these games; they are quickly learning the fine points and rules of soccer; they are readily able to sort out the man who can play from the man who is just a member of the team. The faults and errors of the players are being spotted by the fans as easily as by the selection committee, with the result that the

A very quiet meeting of Strathmore Council was held on Tuesday night, Mayor Shrimpton presiding with Councillors Miner, Hisdon, Garrett, Hughes and Taylor present.

Secretary Treasurer T M Wear read the minutes of the last meeting which upon motion, the Mayor duly confirmed.

The Irrigation proposal has made progress since the last meeting and the Mayor reported that they had a proposal from the Canadian Pacific to supply water at $2 per acre foot, which was considered fair by all. The Mayor had had a meeting with Jos. French and George Quinn the under contractors who work out the figures of the total cost as near as same may be possible.

Details in regard to the number of loans per day that service would require will be obtained.

After the fullest possible information has been obtained then Mayor Shrimpton will call a public meeting in the south of Oxbow, when free and full discussion will be possible and information supplied to the ratepayers.

An effort will be made to obtain a share of the Relief Money which will be paid by the Provincial and Federal Governments and if successful the cost of the Irrigation to the ratepayers would be materially reduced and in addition would supply a certain amount of work for any who may be unemployed.

An application for a grant to the Red Cross was turned down for the present at least.

The Secretary was instructed to bring pressure for payment of taxes by those in arrears.

Current accounts amounting to $148 were passed and referred to Finance Committee for payment.

PREMIER RAMSAY MACDONALD OBEYS IRRESPECTIVE OF CONSEQUENCES

London: — The whole world has been watching the course of events in Great Britain during the past few days with an interest aroused by the knowledge that far more than the fate of a single country has been at stake. The stability of the international credit system which centers in London has been the sheet anchor to which the credit systems of many countries have been tied. The confidence and security which London afforded were an asset to the whole world—a fixed point which seemed immovable when all else might be in a state of flux.

British credit was secure because its maintenance always has been an article of faith held by the British nation. It was a matter of national pride and national honor. Britain held up her head confidently as a nation which spared no sacrifice to balance her budgets, to meet her obligations in full and to transact her financial affairs with other countries with scrupulous integrity. Even the bare suspicion that she might fail in this national and international task has been a shock to the whole world. But nowhere has the shock been so acutely felt as with in Britain itself. It has produced an immediate and characteristic reaction. The nation has steeled itself to put aside all other interests and to sacrifice all competing claims in the resolve to take swift, sure measures toward proving that the world's confidence was not misplaced.

To secure this end, Premier Ramsay MacDonald has cut himself away from the associations of a lifetime. "My credentials," he says "are those of national duty as I conceive it, and I obey them irrespective of consequences."

The Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin has put away all thought of party advantage and has freely offered the services of himself and his supporters. Liberals in like manner have rallied to the cause and are contributing their wisdom and experience to the National Government. There remains only one powerful dissident group within the nation, consisting of those elements in the Labor Party whose experience has not been broad enough to enable them to realize the nature of sacrifice that is demanded. But these elements have been swept aside in a tide of national feeling which has carried all before it.

It was not necessary that the opinion of the country should be sought in a general election. It was unmistakable. Parliament was not sitting. It was a period of personal and political holiday making. Yet when the emergency arose, so clear was the voice of the people that it has been possible within a day or two to dismiss the old administration, stop party warfare and set up a powerful combination of Conservatives, Socialists and Liberals to act as a National Government. Nothing like it has been seen since the war.

"This threatened cloud has to be dispelled and dispelled immediately," says the Prime Minister. "Action, swift, decisive and effective, is asked for. And that we propose to give," And he goes on to announce the sacrifices that will be demanded from all classes in the community not excluding the unemployed.

The National Government has been set up to give expression to and make good this common will to sacrifice. That is the note of the moment. That is the resolve of a nation keyed to the necessity of stupendous effort. It is in the realization of great emergencies that the British nation asserts its character and it is no more likely to fail today than in other great crisis in the past. It did not hesitate to offer lives and money in the war. Now it is called upon to sacrifice something temporarily at least in its standard of living. The combination of its wisest and most tried statesmen in the new National Government is an earnest of its resolve and a guarantee of its success. A return of confidence is deserved and in fact seems already assured. The benefit which will accrue to Great Britain will be a benefit to the world.

Funeral services for the late Mr C Arbogast was held at Calgary and Bruce Parlors in Calgary last Wednesday afternoon. Mr Arbogast was 66 years of age at the time of his passing, having been one of the early pioneers of the district. The remains were taken to Bushnell, Ill., for interment. He is mourned by his son James Arbogast of Youngstown, Mrs C H Heath and Mrs S McCarthy of Calgary, The Rev Robert McGowen officiated at the services. The old west passes slowly into history with the passing of its pioneers lingering only in the minds of those who cherish old times and its characters. CH11

Steve O'Neill, manager of the Toronto Team was talking to manager Walter Johnson of the Senators at Detroit. O'Neill happened to remark that "Lefty" Grove had hard luck in failing to beat the joint record held by Johnson and Joe Wood for sixteen consecutive victories in the American League, the final score at St. Louis having been posted up at Detroit.

"Let me tell you what a tough break I got when my sixteen straight wins were broken," said Johnson.

"We were playing the St Louis Browns, too," he continued. "In the seventh inning Washington was leading by 2 to 1. Then our pitcher put two Browns on bases and I was sent in to replace him. A wild pitch or a passed ball, I have forgotten which, put the runners on second and third, respectively. Then the batter sent a fly to Pete Compton in the outfield and Pete dropped it, both runs coming in. The score ended 3 to 2, and, under the rule then in force, I was credited with the defeat. The Washington Club wrote to the league President about the rule and showed the injustice of it. From that time on the rule has been changed, but I was still charged with that defeat. I can appreciate how Grove feels."

—:o:—

Oscar Melillo, who was a member of the last professional ball team Winnipeg fans had to cheer for, was the lad who snapped Lefty Grove's long string of consecutive wins. Of course, Dick Coffman, who gave the Athletics their first coat of whitewash this season, was very much in the picture, but it was little Oscar who caressed the pellet for two bases and drove in the only runner of the contest.

—:o:—

The many friends of Nap Lajoie, the French Canadian, one of the greatest ball players the game ever knew, with eyes like a hawk and murderous bat, will regret to learn that he suffering from bad eyesight. It seems while playing golf last summer he smashed the ball and hitting a tree it came back to crash into his eye. He can read or see things close to him, but his vision for distant objects and not very distant at that, has been destroyed.

—:o:—

Possibility that the New York Giants and Yankees will win second place in their respective leagues furnished added incentive for a post season city series between the two clubs.

Proposals for a city series, advanced by the New York World Telegram, have been received enthusiastically by the players and followers of the two teams, who have not met since 1923, when they clashed in the world series.

With the Giants apparently assured of second place in the national league, and the Yankees within one game of the second place Washington Senators in the American league, the proposed series would be second in interest only to the annual world series.

When the fall racing season opened on Saturday at Whittier Park a dominant figure for years in local turf circles was missing. Terence is made to Alfred G Tarn, who is now recovering from an operation, which will, of course, prevent his attendance at the race tracks. The familiar Tarn colors, however will again be much in evidence and friends of the popular owner, who has had more than his share if misfortune lately, are hoping they will decorate more winners than in the spring.

—:o:—

Reno: Nev. Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, agreed to meet any opponent selected for him in a four round exhibition match at the Reno race track on Labor Day.

William Graham, in charge of the Labor day programme, which will have 50 rounds of boxing, said he was attempting to secure a boxer of national prominence for Dempsey, who has been assured $10,000 for the appearance .

BASE-STEALING ART FALLS INTO DECAY

—:o:—

Base-stealing is rapidly becoming a lost art in the major leagues, mainly because the manager refuses to "take a chance." The Philadelphia Athletics, greatest of all teams, have pilfered less than twenty bases to date, and some of the players haven't stolen any. Connie Mack has issued instructions that no player is to attempt to steal unless he gets the sign from Mack or Coach Eddie Collins, and those two experts seldom give the sign.

The Detroit Tigers have tried the pilfering act with a degree of success, but look where they are in the race! There was a time when the great Ty Cob thrilled the fans, and made life miserable for the pitchers with his daring base-running, but there was only one Cobb.

Ben Chapman of the New York Yankees is the best base stealer in the majors, and "he's a good one, his total being near the forty mark, but Chapman, who pilfers bases at every opportunity, has scored 77 runs, only one more than the number credited to "Mule" Haas, the Athletic outfielder, who has not stolen a base this season. In the matter of batting Haas is only slightly ahead of Chapman.

Perhaps the astute Connie Mack is right after all. But it must be remembered that he has an exceptional band of sluggers, who can be relied on to drive in the runs.

In the National League the pilfering act is seldom attempted. The leaders are Cuyler of the Cubs and Comorosky of the Pirates each having stolen eleven sacks in his palmy days Ty Cobb could have equalled this mark in a week. It was thought that the new ball would cause the managers to pay more attention to base-running but the reverse has been the case.

The Boston Red Sox have five of the fastest men in baseball, but they have stolen only a few bases. There is, however, nothing remarkable in this, the Sox being notoriously weak hitters, and as Hal Clymer once said of a player who was exceptionally speedy but weak batsman: "He may be fast, but he never learned how to steal first base."

New York:— Ignoring the large cash award offered to the sports writer who today refuses to refer to Lou Gehrig as "baseball's Iron Man," we hereby announce that "Iron Man" Gehrig will play his 1,000th consecutive major league game in Detroit.

From a person who has been a close observer of Mister Gehrig since the day he stepped off a subway from Columbia university into the Yankee stadium it was learned exclusively that Lou is not really an "Iron Man" but is composed of bone, sinew and muscle.

But it seems to me that any fellow who has not missed a ball game since June 1, 1925, despite broken bones, black eyes, Charley horses split thumbs, homesick mess and growing pains, can be called an "Iron Man," without fear of contradiction.

Of course, giving Gehrig an "Iron Man" rating after his 1,000th game is hardly fair to Everett Scott, who ran off 1,307 games before missing a day, and Jobe Sewell, Gehrig's team mate who showed in the line-up 1,103 times without a miss. In fairness to all concerned we have decided that, in the future, Scott will be referred to as the "Steel Man," and Sewell as the "Iron Man (extra tough).

Gehrig is almost certain to go on and surpass the marks set up by Scott and Sewell. For there never was a player better built for tough wear than the Yanks' first baseman. Lou weighs in the neighborhood of 250 pounds, and every one of those pounds is muscle. Unlike Ruth, who must carry his belly about on a pair of chorus girl legs, Gehrig has a pair of props built along the generous lines of a baby grand piano. He proved that he was just a little bit tougher than concrete in Boston several seasons back when christian Scott, he put a foul tip into his grounds. He got up at the count of ten and went back into action.

Shrike, deep in the Dixie and forever that has come his way with a few of the less modest players in the game. Not exactly of course as when he first reported to the Yankees He asked Col Ruppert a rookie Lou lived up to all the best baseball freshmen traditions from straw suitcase to letters home.

His greenness was accentuated by his habit of going about without hat vest, or overcoat, no matter the season nor the place. He did not start to dress like the other players until that historic spring day when he walked out of the stadium and was offered a loan by a tender hearted fan, and told to go and buy himself enough clothes to keep warm.

CHURCHILL PORT FACILITIES ARE AMPLE, OLVER

—:o:—

Churchill, Man: Even if Churchill's Bay route is open only two months a year, its modern railway and elevator can handle all the grain to be exported from central and northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba," stated Hon Frank Oliver, pioneer westerner, on a visit to the Bay port recently. He foresaw that the Bay route would provide the Port Arthur and Pacific routes with competition having a pronounced effect on the prosperity of the Canadian West.

HEARD ON THESTREET

A young man visiting in Seattle was a bit shy, and after she had thrown her arms around him and kissed him for bringing her a bouquet of flowers, he arose and started to leave.

"I am sorry I offended you," she said.

"Oh, I'm not offended," he replied. "I'm going for more flowers."

Different Conclusions— A group of workmen were discussing the evolution and origin of man. One of the party remained silent, when a companion turned to him and demanded his opinion.

"I ain't goin' to say," he replied doggedly, "I remember as 'ow Henry Green and me threshed this out once before, and it's settled as far as I am concerned."

"But what conclusion did you come to?"

"Well," he said slowly, "we did not arrive at the same conclusion —no, we didn't. Henry, he arrived at the 'ospital an' me at the police station."

Then the Feathers Flew— Helen (aged five): "Mother, can hens live at the seaside?"

Mother: "Of course, dear. Why do you ask?"

Helen: "Because I heard daddy tell the new maid he would take her out in the car as soon as he had sent the old hen to the seaside."

Among Those Not Present— A farmer once wrote to a distinguish ed scientific agriculturist to whom he felt under an obligation for introducing new variety of swine, as follows: Respected Sir— I went yesterday to the fair where I found several pigs of your species. There was a great variety of beasts and I was very much astonished at no seeing you there."

Carl Brown— What did you do with your money.

Herb— Well, I spent a hundred shooting crap, fifty in a poker game, fifty on cigarettes, twenty-five on taxi fare, and seventy-five on a girl.

Carl— But that only makes three hundred. What did you do with the balance.

Herb— Oh, I dunno! I must have spent that foolishly in Olds.

Keep ahead of the weather with the Improved Fordson Tractor

You can't control the weather, but you can make the most of the favorable days this spring . . . with a Fordson Agricultural Tractor.

Let a Fordson help you get your crops started off with the season. Then you'll be on time through cultivating and harvesting. You'll be ahead of time when the frosts come.

Let us show you how this Fordson Agricultural Tractor works—its ease of operation—its positive starting features—its extra power. We'd be glad to have you come in the next time you're in town, so that we can point out the improvements and arrange for a demonstration on your farm.

BRITAIN'S DEFICIT ONLY EQUALS CANADA'S COMPARATIVELY

Premier Ramsay MacDonald may have ruined his political future by doing what he considered to be his duty in facing the financial crisis as a statesman rather than looking out for himself.

The Toronto Globe in comment ing on the situation says:

A deficit of $600,000,000 in the British Budget is not a greater calamity, relatively speaking, than one of $75,000,000 in the Canadian Budget. Yet the prospect of facing it threatened to impair the credit of the country, has displaced the Labor Government with a coalition Ministry, and is likely to wreck party alignments manifested in recent years. Financially and politically it has produced a sensation as well as a crisis.

Early despatches from London attributed the need of urgency in retrenchment to the Bank of England situation. It was said the bank had exhausted the credit of $250,000,000 arranged in Paris and London and that extension was denied until steps were taken to carry out the report of the Committee on Economies, involving reduced payments under the unemployment insurance schemes. These reports were not credited in despatches to The Globe last evening. Belief was expressed that the Bank of England had used it's $250 000 credit and that additional credit could be had if required. Confirmation of this may be found in the action of sterling exchange, which remained normal. It is probable that the Bank of England, in common with other financial institutions, has extensive funds tied up in Germany, but it is also to be noted that attempts to depress sterling in foreign countries have not been markedly successful.

Under the circumstances, it would seem that urgency was needed to prevent financial strain taking place rather than to relieve something that had happened. It was a case of "taking by the forelock" so far as financial institutions were concerned, but with regard to the finances of the Government there was no doubt that the handwriting was on the wall for all to see.

The fact that eight Ministers in the MacDonald Cabinet resigned rather than be a party to any action reducing the dole and numerous salaries indicates the tight corner in which the Government was placed. Carrying out the recommendations of the Committee on Economics could not fail to antagonize large sections of the voters, including those influenced by the powerful Trades Union Council. Nevertheless, the huge expenditures of the Labor Ministry, combined with the restrictions placed on industry and abnormal taxation, settled the onus on the Government, and obligated it to find a way out in all fairness. Had Mr. MacDonald a strong majority he might have felt capable of facing the crisis without help. With so many of his Cabinet colleagues deserting, there was no course but to resign or seek a coalition Government. Manifestly the latter move was the more satisfactory and promising. It is no time to throw the country into the uncertainty of an election and assign to one party—whichever might be successful—the task of pulling the Exchequer out of a hole; besides, delay might have been fatal.

Who suggested the National Ministry does not yet appear. It is counted significant that the first person to see the King on his hurried return to London was Sir Josiah Stamp, Buckingham Palace was the scene of several subsequent interviews, and it may be as one London paper states, that King George has proved himself again the country's greatest statesman.

Union of political forces for the purpose of straightening out the financial tangle can leave no doubt that the job will be done. It is not a formidable task, considering Britain's wealth and resources, and is not probable that it will be a lengthy operation. Interest will soon begin to attach itself to the probable effect on political fortunes and future policies. The Labor Party appears to have undergone a split from which it will not recover for some time. Mr MacDonald himself will bear the greatest brunt of whatever criticism comes from its rank and file, as he is to head the new Ministry and it will be shared by those of his colleagues who remain in the Cabinet. As a matter of fact they will be entitled to credit for their courage in sacrificing possible political prestige and party theories for a national cause. What they will lose in one section of the community, therefore, they should gain in another. As a whole the situation will lend itself to a new alignment of parties, and may bring much needed clarity to British politics

For the meantime the balancing of the Budget is a domestic affair, involving ruthless trimming of expenses. To get reasonable assurance of balances in the future will introduce policies on which the various parties are not likely to agree. The career of the National Government will pave the way to another election, and, in all probability, its legislation will have a profound effect on the result. If it lasts long enough to overcome the ill effects of socialism—one of which is the investment of capital in other countries—the present crisis may very well mark a permanent turn in British affairs

It will be gratifying to those whose faith in British traditions continues unbroken to realize that when a critical period arises the obviously proper steps are taken to meet it. Only a coalition Government can deal with the existing situation adquately; therefore a coalition Government is formed. British leaders have not lost the our rect perspective of affairs. The country is safe in their hands

HOW SOME NEWSPAPERS TRY TO KEEP PEOPLE ALL RIGHT

In an editorial note, the Blairmore, Alberta, Enterprise said:

An old and hardened criminal in the prison was asked recently what was the first step that led to his ruin, and he answered: "The first step that led to my downfall was cheating an editor out of two years subscription. When I had done that, the devil had such a grip on me that I could not shake him off."

"The Advance for many years has done its best to keep people from thus "going to the devil," by insisting that all subscription be paid strictly in advance. By this plan subscribers are prevented from taking that first downward step on the road to ruin. In the working out of this rule, however, a few still injure themselves in ignorance and misery and darkness. When you receive that little pink slip, be sure to read it and to heed it, so that you may continue to receive your copy of The Advance regularly and escape both the darkness of ignorance in this life and the blazing fires of punishment in the next.—Timmins, Ontario, Advance.

BUSINESS UPTURN VERY ENCOURAGING

—::O::—

Montreal— An immediate upturn in business conditions, which should hold at least until the end of the year, was forecast here by Paul Clay, New York Statistician. The upturn may well mark the end of the great agricultural and industrial depression, he said.

"If the trade revival is as good as I hope, it should, I think bring about good business conditions for at least two years," said Mr Clay. "But we wont be in a position to say whether it will be a continued upturn until January of next year"

Mr Clay declared that he had no doubt whatever, of the coming of an immediate trade revival. I base my judgement on the immense reductions in loans and credits; on the liquidation of inventories and the extensive deflation of money rates. Besides the stock market is once more acting bullish."

But permanent prosperity cannot return to the North American Continent until the manufacturing corporations are once more on a dividend paying basis, said Mr Clay, and this in turn cannot be achieved unless average industrial production increases by at least ten per cent.

FAMOUS COW DIES; WAS RECORD MAKER

—::O::—

Regina: Canary Korndyke Alcartra is dead. The world famous Holstein cow which, in 1928, created a world production record of approximately 1,080 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, and which later was purchased by the Saskatchewan Government for $10,000 in order to save her progeny and production values for Saskatchewan, succumbed recently to the after effects of parturition. She was in her prime and expected to live a full extent of her purchase price, and leaves, as earnest of her endeavor to give the Province its money's worth, a very promising bull calf and an infant heifer whose birth preceded by a few days the mother's death. Her blood lines thus may be preserved for Saskatchewan in fulfilment of the Government's original intention in purchasing the cow from her owner.

Canary Korndyke Alcartra, on the occasion of her outstanding performance was "honor guest" of Saskatchewan live stock men at a banquet in Moose Jaw, the event securing universal press recognition. Her fame attracted attention of wealthy live stock men, but their offers were rejected when the Provincial Government decided to bid for her retention in Saskatchewan.

FARMER OWES MONEY ON VEGETABLE SALE

—::O::—

Port Credit:— Vegetable farming is having its gloomy days in the Port Credit district. R Hill, a farmer on Indian Road, speaking to the Globe, reported that some days ago he shipped 72 eleven-quart baskets of mixed vegetables to Toronto. The baskets cost him eight cents each, or a total of $5.76. He received word from the commission agent at Toronto that he owed the sum of $3.56 on the shipment, as his consignment had, according to the card received, been "dumped," and not sold. The baskets are now being returned to him, but before he can have them he must pay the express company another $3.60 for carriage. Hill already this season has shipped some 1,500 baskets of fruit and vegetables to Toronto, and his receipts for the lot are less than $100

EGG MARKET PROSPECT

—::O::—

The current issue of the egg and Poultry Market Review, published by the Dominion of Agriculture at Ottawa, after calling attention to the definite turn for the better which is now apparent in the egg marked throughout the Dominion, makes the following observation in respect to the present situation.

"Since early in the spring this publication has consistently pointed out the probabilities of the situation which appear now to be developing. A reduction in flocks, such as has taken place in many sections, was advised against. During recent weeks their has been an active demand for pullets, indicating that many producers are renewing faith in the egg market and are anxious to enlarge their flocks in proportions planned for earlier in the spring.

KANSAS FARMER BUYS HIS CROP READY-MADE

—::O::—

Chicago— A Kansas farmer, Mr C E King, already has his next years wheat crop sown, harvested threshed and in the bin— without spending a day in the field. The Bureau Farmer of the American Farm Bureau Federation tells how he did it.

Mr King simply bought 16 bushels of wheat for each of the 160 acres on his farm at the prevailing local price of 25 cents a bushel and stored it.

"That's my 1932 crop," he announced. "It's cost me just 25 cents a bushel, flat. I couldn't possibly have grown it for that sum

PRISON INMATE EARNS PAROLE BY DAIRY WORK

—::O::—

Pueblo, Colo.— Demonstrating that penal institutions can restore men to usefulness and self-respect the board of corrections of the Colorado state penitentiary this summer paroled an inmate and immediately employed him as an overseer.

The man was John Bargsfrede who had served six years of a term of 20 years to life for taking the life of Judge John H Low during an argument over alimony payments.

As an inmate, Bargsfrede accomplished for the prison what civilian herdsmen had been unable to do. He built the prison's dairy from a mediocre herd into one of the West's outstanding Holstein herds. Last year it ranked at the top of all large dairies in Colorado. Many of the animals have taken blue ribbons at western fairs.

As a civilian overseer, Bargsfrede will be in charge of the dairy and the trusties working there.

Resourcefulness was necessary to improve the herd, as state funds were not available. Registered animals are not purchased at fancy prices as the dairy farm, buildings and animals have an inventory value of only $15,000. Some of the bulls are made of salvage from the 1929 penitentiary riot, and are covered with paint swabbed from empty paint barrels in the license plate factory.

The National Dairy Association in 1930 extended recognition to the prison herd for the second time because the 14 cows under test averaged 411.7 pounds of butterfat during the year. The average for the State is 200.57 pounds.

Mr Thomas A Dake, a member of the correspondence board, gives Bargsfrede credit for records established with the Holsteins. It has been pointed out that Bargsfrede ferrets out the weak points and is not content until a desirable solution is reached.

Mr J M Donahue, deputy warden stated that Bargsfrede picks out a young man who enter the prison and helps in reformation work. With the meager funds he had during his confinement, Bargsfrede is known to have built up a purchased correspondence courses for at least two young inmates.

SURE CURE FOR GRASSHOPPERS

—::O::—

The Lett Island Columnist of the Lethbridge Herald contributed what he considers to be a valuable tip for Mr Hoadley, in case the grasshoppers menace his province.

Apropos the grasshoppers that ate an Iowa farmer's coat the other day, the Colorado hoppers have them backed off the map if we may believe the following United Press despatch from Las Animas, Colorado.

George Pointon, farmer with a local reputation for veracity and kindness to children, today told the United Press just how to clear a farm of grasshoppers, the dread invaders which leave no green thing behind them.

Here's the recipe, in Pointon's own words:

"Take poisoned bran mash, use it for a couple of days, and when it fails, fill galvanized tins with cayenne or garden variety moonshine— it'll eat anything else— and spread them around. I did it and here's what happened:

"First the hoppers started jumping backward and turning somersaults. I figured that was better than having them eating my crops, but I watched a while longer.

"Then they turned ugly, started tearing each other limb from limb. Finally they started eating each other. After a while there was only one left.

"I slammed the door just in time as that one, with a horrible growl, chased me into the house.

"Peeping out of the window, I watched it wander off into the hills looking for mountain lions."

BACK TO THE FARM

—::O::—

Winnipeg:— The United States as well as Canada is experiencing something new under the sun a back to the land movement. The Chicago Journal of Commerce quotes figures to the effect that last year 1,320,000 persons left towns and cities for the farm. It is a movement which is completely balancing the trend the other way. The vast majority of those going back are from the farm in the first place and had come to the city during the period when industry was calling for men

There is no doubt that this movement was accentuated in the United States as in Canada, by the stories of youths from the farms who had forged rapidly ahead in the urban areas, stories which consistently declined to give the complementary picture of the youths from the farm who either failed in the city or had to be content with very circumscribed jobs. The present trend is definitely economic. "The bread line and free soup kitchens," sums up the manufacturers record, "are not features of farm life." That is not quite accurate in either country where relief has been and must be supplied to the drought stricken areas, but it is true in a general way that the farm in 999 cases out of 1000 will, with the co-operation of labor and a little foresight, supplying three meals a day.

Certainly this is the dynamic which is forcing here what is termed "colonization at home" and which, according to the statement of the Minister of Immigration, will be the chief business this year of his department.

It is not a time when production can with sanity be urged. The markets of the world are over supplied with foodstuffs. Nevertheless land settlement undertaken at this time should not address itself only to a three meal policy. No sooner will settlement go in anywhere than there will arise necessity of schools of roads and of health services and the like. Therefore as the Free Press has already pointed out, this settlement should not be undertaken without the utmost care as to the type of land selected. All these western provinces are at this moment suffering from colonization which took no thought for the possibilities of the land. Where our farm relief problems are in the majority of cases areas where general settlement should never have been allowed, let alone encouraged.

Even where individuals are not in receipt of relief, we have municipality after municipality, area after area, which are now and have been for several years accepting handouts from the provincial Governments in order that they might maintain the minimum of service. There is no need of this sort of catastrophe, for there is good land for settlement available And there is no benefit in exchanging a relief problem in the cities for one in the country, no benefit and no necessity. The governments concerned have all the data needed and it is upon that data that any plan of re-ruralizing should be based

FORAGE GRASS

—::O::—

Ottawa.— The prairies don't have a new forage grass, the credit of which grows, which may prove of far reaching an effect on the west as the developments of new types of wheat has had, it is the result of years of breeding various strains of grasses to provide a variety which will be better than any other for fodder purposes. Professor L E Kirk, formerly of the University of Saskatchewan, and now Dominion Agrostologist has been responsible for developing this grass. After years of trials and experiments this variety was put through severe tests this summer and these were so successful that the grass may well play a big part in the development of livestock growing in that part of Canada.

Best Yet Developed.

In making the announcement Hon Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, referred to the advantage this grass has over other grasses in the Prairies. It is more palatable than any of the other grasses. It is high in feed value, it comes earlier in the spring than any other grass in the West. In early June it is green under the snow. In the tests this summer created wheat grass was cut nine times and still remained green and full of sap. Its roots are twice the depth of rye grass and, side by side with rye grass in a field this summer, created wheat grass was firmly rooted whereas rye grass was easily kicked out.

Professor Kirk is regarded as Mr Weir said, as one of the great authorities on this continent on forage crops. He is being brought in to the department particularly to investigate the breeding of grasses to repair the pastures of British Columbia as well as Eastern Canada, in addition to the development of the crested wheat grass to prevent drifting in the prairies, and enable the farmers there to be more nearly self supporting on their own farms.

Other Achievements

Another variety of forage which Prof. Kirk was responsible for the prairies.

Great Railroad Has Fine Police Force

Loyal, part of their official dress, are greatly appreciate to members of the Canadian Pacific Railway Police, not only for the smart touch thus added to their line uniform, but because they are emblematic of the force itself; an organization of spotless reputation and unfailing courteousness. Not only is this picked body of men, well-trained and ununiformed, the safeguard of the property of the world's greatest transportation system and its thousands of patrons, but its members are ever ready and anxious to render courtesies to travellers in all part of the Dominion. Wherever the company has its interests, be it a great terminal, a wharf or a vast freight yard, "the man in blue" is to be found. Many of the constables and their officers are expert marksmen and at their head is Brigadier-General E. de B. Panet, C.M.G., D.S.O., A.D.C., a distinguished Canadian soldier with a splendid record as a staff officer during the Great War. The force has won many trophies for first-aid work and also in revolver shooting. Its Ontario team having captured the Canadian police revolver championship for the whole Dominion this year.

A great percentage of the heads of households for the Municipal District of Grasswold were present at the meeting held for the purpose of finding out what could be done for relief work for the coming winter. Mr Wagner of Standard made a very efficient Chairman and Mr Buckley, the member for this constituency was present to answer questions and to take the resolutions before the Government. A great deal of time was spent on useless discussion, but eventually the motion was passed to ask the Government for an amount around $25,000 instead of $2,500 as has been already allotted and in the mean time the Councillors are to gather information as to the extent of relief needed as far as can be foretold. The relief accomodation will be given for road work wherever it is possible.

A very pleasant evening was spent by all present at the Tudor School House last Tuesday August 25th, the occasion being a shower in honor of Miss Joan Agate whose wedding to Frederick K Schafer will take place in Strathmore Anglican Church Monday September 7th. Early in the evening three little maids ushered in a wagon laden with gifts of all description, and helped Miss Agate to open the same. Little Shirley Horton and Fay Agate who were dressed as bride and groom sang "Young and Mine" and the three girls sang as an encore "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver". Mr Leonard on behalf of the community gave a few words of greeting to the honored guests and wished them every happines and prosperity to which both replied very fittingly, after which several games were enjoyed. Tudor's new orchestra composed of three boys, Winfield Schafer, Alfonso Stinn and Wallis Gibson, with Mrs Horton as leader at the piano made their first public appearance and were received very well for the dance which took up the balance of the evening. A delightful lunch was served by the ladies.

Historic Wolfe's Cove Assumes New Aspect

The scene of the landing of General Wolfe, under the towering cliffs crowned by the Plains of Abraham and the City of Quebec, is about to become the setting for yet another important event in the history of Canada. On September 13, 1931, the British forces disembarked at what is now known as Wolfe's Cove, to capture Quebec. On June 2, 1931, passengers from the new 42,500-ton Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Britain", on her maiden voyage from Scotland to Quebec, will land within a few yards of the same spot and be taken by train, through a tunnel slightly over a mile long, under the historic battlefield on which the English hero lost his life, direct to the Canadian Pacific's main line to Montreal. This new traffic link, which is being completed by the company at a cost of some $2,000,000, will eliminate the present journey through Quebec's terminals and materially shorten the running time from the ship's side to all important Canadian and American centres. A concrete quay-wall, 4,300 feet in length, with 40 feet of water at low tide, will provide berthing space for the new giantess and her sister "White Empresses", and five railway tracks, converging into one at the end of the wharf and thence turning into the new tunnel, will serve to transfer passengers from the bosom of the St. Lawrence to their respective destinations. Disembarkation will be effected through a two-storey shed, with stairways leading down to the trains. The pictures show: (1) Wolfe's army landing to capture Quebec, (from an old drawing). (2) The tunnel mouth near the riverside, now under construction. (3) General Wolfe.

WHEAT POOL SELLING AGENCY

—::O::—

In working out any plan for centralized selling as between the three provincial Wheat Pools on 1931 crop, certain difficulties developed which made it inadvisable to attempt to place any such plan into operation at present, and it was therefore decided that each provincial Pool organization should operate separately in purchasing, handling and selling grain delivered to it. As a result of this decision, the Central Selling Agency, which has acted for the past seven years as the selling agency for the provincial Wheat Pools of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, will not be used as such in the marketing of 1931 crop.

The Alberta Wheat Pool has now completed its plans for carrying on under such reorganized basis. Grain sales will be handled by a newly formed commission and sales department, which setup will function as an integral part of the Alberta Wheat Pool and under the general management of R D Purdy, T E Oliver assistant manager, will have charge of all local sales in Alberta at head office in Calgary; O Z Buchanan formerly manager of the Calgary branch of the Central Selling Agency, has been engaged by the Alberta Wheat Pool as Western sales manager, and will be located at Vancouver. W C Fiddler, formerly salesman with the Central Selling Agency at Winnipeg, has been employed as Eastern sales manager, and will be stationed at Winnipeg. W J Graham an experienced grain commission man, has been employed to take charge of the newly organized commission department at the head office in Calgary.

In this reorganization it has been necessary for the Alberta Wheat Pool to take over one of the seats on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange formerly under control of the Central Selling Agency, which membership is necessary in order to facilitate handling of any required hedging and marketing operations.

The new provincial set up will operate independently of the Central Selling Agency, which will continue to function under the management of John I McFarland on all the 1930 crop has been disposed of.

T. L. CHURCH OPPOSED THE BERUHARNOIS PROPOSITION

—::O::—

Toronto: Denunciation of Premier R B Bennett's failure to press the inquiry into Beauharnois to a final conclusion through a non-partisan Royal Commission is expressed in a statement issued recently by T L Church, K C

Mr Church, while a member of Parliament tonight sought for four years, all through 1926 and up to May, 1930, against the Beauharnois power, being defeated on the question in the House of Commons by a vote of 85 to 72 in 1928. In his statement last night he unpartisingly castigates all parties in Parliament for their share in the matter.

"Whitewash and Mockery,"

"Evidently," he declares, referring to the Government's failure to institute a Royal Commission on inquiry "obsolete modes of thought still linger in Cabinets when the breeze of public opinion has destroyed them out of doors. I am seemly disappointed at the whitewash and humbug and mockery made of things and the premium put on corruption. The truth now will never be known, for the part played by Big Interests and Big Men in the background and Provincial Politicians, Commissions & banks. No recommendations have been made to prosecute any one, nor to prosecute for false statements in the company's prospectus.

"An Invisible Government."

"Money lordism is forcing itself on our free institutions in this country. There has risen up among the forms of democracy in Canada an invisible Government. It is the government of money kings, who seek by orders in council privileges from parliament and to control both political parties. The cupidity of such people has been stirred by the vast natural resources of the country. They have been encouraged by the servility of our Governments, and our antiquated system by which grants of natural resources such as the St Lawrence do not come before Parliament, but are passed upon in the secrecy of Cabinet Council."

Mr Church declared that he doubted that public opinion anywhere in Canada would support Mr Bennett. Mr King or Mr Gardiner or the "hush and whitewash policy."

Platitudes and Empty Words

"The report of the committee" he declares, "is nothing but a lot of platitudes and empty words that will hurt no one and embodies a cuirass of red tape and parchment.

"These big interests can fool every Legislature and corrupt the chief officials, Federal and Provincial, and get away with it. This deal has tested the size of the leaders and their vision and courage. The witcheries of the Quebec power barons, assisted by the stupefying opiate of the banks, and the bribines of politicians, have put public opinion to sleep."

The Federal Conservative Party, continued Mr Church, were out of the Beauharnois deal, "and were only brought in it by the Ferguson end of the party, which has been a drag all along to the party" He denounced the Beauharnois tactics as "Tammany."

Bennett's Inconsistency.

He twitted Premier Bennett on a recent statement in the House to the effect that nothing should be permitted to unsettle confidence in the institutions and customs under which we live.

Looking to the Future

Robert Gardiner, M. P., president of the United Farmers of Alberta, says:

"Looking to the future I am confident that Alberta farmers will never be satisfied by any system of marketing that is not strictly co-operative in its basis, because no other system can meet their needs.

"By patronizing Pool elevators we can speed the day when the co-operative system will be firmly established as the normal method of handling our products."
